

ANSWER 1

- 1-Integrity and authorization
- 2-Password authorization
- 3-Confidentiality
- 4-Availability and reliability
- 5-Out-band authorization
- 6-Signature authorization

integrity and authorization:

If we look at the payment system with integrity allows no money to be taken from a user Explicit authorization by that user.it may also disallow the receipt of payment without explicit consent,to prevent occurrences o things like unsolicited bribery.

Password authorizaton:

The transaction protected by a password requires that every message from the authorizing party include a cryptographic check value.the check value is computed using secret known only to the authorizing and verifying parties.this secret can be personal identifications numbers,a password,or any form if shared secret.

Signature authorization:

In this type of transaction,the verifying party requires a digital signature of the authorizing party,digital signatures provide non repudiation of origin:only the owner of the secret signing key can sign messages whereas everybody who knows the corresponding public verification key can verify the authenticity of signatures.

Confidentiality:

In this context means the restriction of the knowledge about various pieces of information related to a transaction the identity of payer/payee, purchase conent,amount, and so on.typically, the confidentiality requirement indicates that this information be restricted only to the participants involved.

Out-band authorization:

In this approach, the verifying party typically a bank notifies the authorizing party of a transaction.the authorizing party is required to approve or deny the payment using asecure,out-band channel.
